Instant Runoff Repeal

Wednesday, February 17, 2010

Repeal the I-R-V mistake.

Burlington has a chance to correct a bad mistake on Election Day. Voters can get rid of the city's ridiculous, confusing, badly conceived and troubling Instant Runoff System.

That's the system that lets a voter choose more than one candidate---no decisions needed! You can list your second, third, and fourth choices, too.

How's that working? Well, the current mayor finished second in the last election, but ended up "winning"---thanks to I-R-V.

Instant Runoff Voting is nothing more than a grand sociological experiment designed to make sure we're all singing "Kumbayah" while we avoid making real choices.

You can change that by voting "Yes" on Question number 5 on the town meeting day ballot. A "yes" vote means you think Burlington can elect a mayor by using common sense and actually making a choice.

We hope voters will show some of that common sense and repeal I-R-V.

That's our opinion. What's yours?
